

PERSONALIA

Tore Olav Mehus

Born: 14 October 1971

Started his service July 1991

Command sergeant major Tore Mehus took responsibility as CSM to the Surgeon general, Norwegian Armed Forces Joint medical services in august 2016, as the first to the position.

After completing the non-commissioned officer's training school in 1992, his first position was as a squad leader in the field artillery bty at the Porsanger garrison. After 3 years as a civilian, he decided to pursue a military career and started in 1996 as an instructor at the NCO school for the coastal rangers, while preparing for the Military academy.

After graduating from the Military academy in 1999, he started his career as a medical officer, and has held several positions within the NOR army medical services, platoon leader, XO Medcoy, assistant battalion S-3, Battalion S-3. In 2009 he started within the operations division in the Joint Medical Services, and his last position before taking the responsibility as CSM was Commander of the joint medical education and training center (2014-2016).

In 2010, Mehus completed the Captains career course at US Army Medical Department Center and School.

After taking responsibility as CSM to the Surgeon general in 2016, Mehus has completed the Command Senior Enlisted (CSEL) course at NATO School Oberammergau (2017), Summit international at the US Joint Special Operations University (2018) and the CSEL course at Baltic Defense College (2019).

Sergeant major Mehus has 2 tours to Afghanistan during his service. First in 2006 as medical platoon leader in the Quick Reaction Force in ISAF regional command NORTH, and second, in 2012 as commanding officer for the Role 2 hospital in the Termination Support Group Faryab (TSG-F).

Sergeant major Tore Mehus is married to Aina, and he is the father of three. He likes skiing, bicycling and running, and tries to keep up with his two teenage boys still living at home.